

Best Holiday Travel Gear

Ten sanity savers when flying with kids.

November 20, 2009

This holiday season Babble wants you to whisk through airport security looking like a travel pro even while dangling kids from each arm. While we can't be your personal porter, (we would if we could!) we can offer you sound advice for successful holiday travel. These ten items have been road-tested and approved by a family of four. — April Peveteaux

CARES Safety Restraint

What a relief to check the car seat when your toddler reaches twenty-two pounds! Slip the CARES safety restraint into your carry-on and that's all you need until your little one can use the regular airplane seat belt. CARES is the only harness child restraint device that is FAA approved and is adjustable until your child reaches forty-four pounds. Giving you extra security and extra space in your bag makes CARES every parent's best friend.
