

Gadgets for kids

KUSA - This week business boy Gregg Moss shows us some gadgets made just for kids.

Cares Kids Fly Safe Travel Harness

This harness is FAA approved and fits all airplane seats. Its makers claim it does everything a car seat would for your kid. They say if you strap them in correctly, it will keep them safe.

The Major difference is that its not bulky and akward like a regular car seat and the harness only weighs a pound.

The harness comes with written and video instructions and appears to be pretty simple to set up. You wrap it around the seat, slide the seatbelt through the harness and adjust it according to your child's size.

It won the 2008 Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval and is great for children who are too big to sit on their parent's lap and too small to be buckled in safely.

The travel harness costs about $75 dollars, which is half the cost of some car seats.

For more information, go to <http://www.kidsflysafe.com/>