

CARES - Child Aviation Restraint System

By: Toronto4Kids

CARES, which stands for Child Aviation Restraint System, was invented by Louise Stoll, a grandmother, after she watched her seven month pregnant daughter emerge from a plane juggling a toddler, a car seat, and a diaper bag.

CARES will revolutionize the way parents travel with young children. Anyone who has ever flown with a child understands what a challenge packing can be. The last thing parents need to be concerned about when flying with a toddler is dragging their car seat on the plane.

The CARES Child Aviation Restraint System takes away that worry. This convenient device that is easy to use and easy to transport. CARES is an FAA-approved 1 lb. harness-type safety device that fits into a 6-inch stuff sack, adjusts to fit virtually all airplane seats, and takes one minute to install. It is designed for children 22-44 lbs (1-4 years old) who are in their own plane seats, and is certified for all phases of flight - taxiing, take off, turbulence and landing.

Before the invention of CARES, families had to lug a bulky car seat onto planes to ensure their little ones were secure. Often, their car seat wouldn't fit properly and would need to be checked with baggage, leaving the child less secure than everyone else on the plane.

The pocket-or-purse-sized CARES, which retails for $74.95, has wowed judges nationally and internationally. It has won many top awards, including the Crystal Cabin Award, which recognizes innovative airplane cabin concepts.

In addition to its many award recognitions, CARES is now approved by Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, Singapore, and accepted for use on Air Baltic, Air France, Cathay Pacific, Czech Airlines, El Al, EVA, Japan Airlines, KLM, Korean Airlines, Olympic Airlines and Swiss International Airlines.
